

Anthony Norton Holohan

My contribution to this project so far has been mainly focused on research of audio and voice acting to implement into our prototype and project. I also helped create blog posts to update our progress with our project and to show our inspirations for it by searching various themes of mental illness in entertainment like film, animation and videogames.

Alongside research I was also responsible for the voice acting in our project as well as adding in and editing effects for the voices using and testing different pieces of software. Also, I contributed to the research and inspiration of our themes with various blog posts showcasing my reasons for inspiration.

For this second semester of the group Project my main contributions and responsibilities was working on our overall website this included the HTML, CSS, jQuery, Parallax and hosting and updating the blog with whatever progress I made with new versions, user tests and feedback. Other things i did was rearrange the comic images in photoshop too get them to work with our new flipbook style, the chapters I rearranged were 1,3 and 4

Near the end of the semester I began work on the updated project booklet for which I was responsible for the version history of the site and overall elements included in it. Formatted the DVDs put the final files on it. Did the presentation.

Junman Tsang

My contribution is that I developed the Parallax website using Dreamweaver and I had spent hours learning how to create the website itself through online tutorials. I also provided the team with the use of my laptop to work on the project and I had helped with posting up our inspirations in our blog and I had also thought up the name JAAK Productions for our team.

In the second semester for the group project. I had taken up the roles of creating the audio for the web comic and also had taken up the responsibility of marketing for the team.

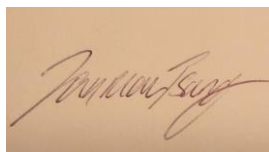

I had used Adobe Audition to edit all the sound files in which some were royalty free and some were developed and recorded.

I had also took part I helping the team in rearranging the comic images in Photoshop. The chapters that I had rearranged were chapters 2 and 5.

For marketing I had designed our t-shirts on Vista Print along with our story's poster and had updated the Facebook page once they were finished.

I agree with Junman's statement overall as he helped me with organising which templates i should use for the website in the beginning of the second semester and when one of our team members left he took over their audio roles entirely. He was also responsible for the marketing and branding of the comic with the t-shirts and facebook and was a valuable contributor to the team however later in the second semester he was sometimes unavailable when it came time to getting final things ready for our presentation due to work issues which did have an impact on the team and project.

Kotryna Kotoviciute

My contribution to the group is that I wrote the story that is being used in the creation of the web comic.

I also showed some work being done to the lecturers that I met once a week. I showed some sketches of the story, character designs and some part of the story written out.

I also made sure that the team would show up to the group meetings as well as the supervisor ones.

I am the one contributing the art and the design and the edit of the booklet.

I also did the blog posts and helped with posting inspiration into the blog as well as the research that was needed to be done.

I made a survey that everyone else shared with others, which gave us some primary research.

I also created the group contract that everyone signed.

I agree with Kotryna's statement because her drawing were amazing and showed an attention to detail alongside the story and they were very good quality overall and she contributed a good amount to the group project.

For the second semester I rewrote the story and created a new one. I also changed the style of the comic.

I created and Illustrated the comic. I did the art work for the comic, I printed the booklet and the comic.

I deigned the front cover and back cover of the comic. I also organised the booklet for the group project.
